“ Heaven gained another angel Sunday morning. We said goodbye to dad! While we knew it was coming and know he is definitely in a better place, it is still sad!

Luckily, I have a lifetime of happy memories to remember. He was the goofy dad who would try anything with us. He was always there and a part of whatever we were doing: sports, birthdays, school. He always had a joke or a story to go with whatever we were doing. He was rarely quiet and could talk to anyone. He usually could find someone to talk and make a connection with them somehow. Most times that connection revolved around food, especially ice cream! Dad was an ice cream connoisseur!

Summers were filled with so many amazing memories. Eating out, especially the buffets in Atlantic City! After a good meal he would say “_____ was the best ever”! That became our family motto. Everything dad loved became the best ever and we said it about everything.

He always knew what show was playing where and where to do something fun. People came to him to find out what to do. We enjoyed so many shows in Atlantic City. His favorite was watching the Miss America Parade and yelling to the girls to show us your shoes (It's a real thing 😂).

I can't even count the number of memories we have on the beach! We took so many walks on the beach! As soon as we got to the beach, he was ready to go for a walk. We talked about everything on those walks. Joe even took him for a walk on the beach to ask him for my hand in marriage. The beach will always be a special place for me!

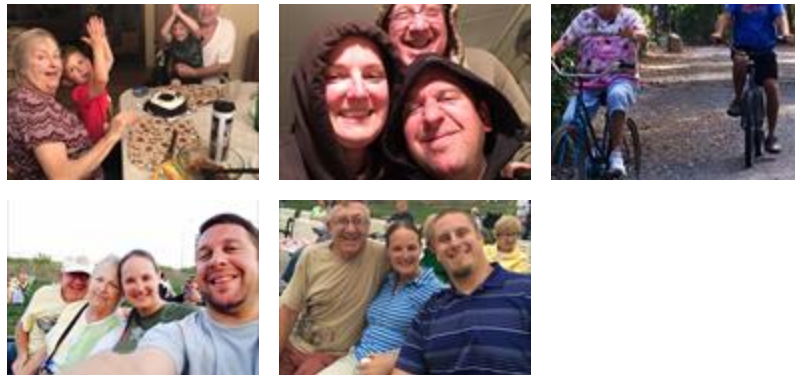

Even after I got married, Joe just joined the family and we continued making memories. We were the family that did it all together. Joe and I have so many happy memories that we can smile about! Watching dad with Andrew always made my heart happy! Andy *loved Pop! He loved the beach, pool, and anything with Andy!

Telling Andy Pop went to heaven was hard but Andy said "he would be my dad now" I'm so glad Andy has memories with him.*

These memories are just a few of the countless ones I have been remembering this week! I can't put into words how awesome my life has been because of dad! How do you put a lifetime into words?

We love you dad ❤️ We know you are in a much better place right now looking down on us. Keep watch over us and we will see you again!

Thanks for the "best ever" life and memories. I love you dad ❤️
