

Jerome Brown

December 22, 2009

Jerome (Jerry) Brown, 87, of Monroeville and a veteran of World War II died on December 22, 2009. He participated in the invasion of Normandy landing on Omaha Beach as well serving in many other areas of combat.

Jerry was a life long Yankee fan having been raised in the same school as Babe Ruth, but he was always careful to say "but not during the same time". During his long life he did many things. He worked at Jefferson Hospital, played minor league baseball, was a partner in a gas station and other kinds of businesses. He was even a bartender. His "retirement job" was at Elwyn Inc. where he worked with handicapped adults.

Jerry loved sports both participating and watching. He and his wife of forty years, Anna, loved to travel. Mr. Brown also enjoyed going to the casinos. Jerry was a kind, cheerful and well liked man whom people liked to be around. As one of his friends said, "Jerry was one of a kind - the best kind".

He will be sadly missed by his wife Anna, his niece, Heather Thistlewood, grandniece, Hailey Hunt, nephews, Christian, Andrew, Sean Thistlewood as well as other members of the Thistlewood family and his many friends.

Mr. & Mrs. Brown are members of St. Ann's Church in Elmer and at his request the service was private. Condolences can be sent to adamsfuneralhome.org or Adams Funeral Home, P.O. Box 881, Elmer, NJ 08318.
