“ Johnny and I had many memories shared. We would always compare how different our lives were compared to the Davino's/Pizzo. We would joke about how close and how often this family talks to each other on a daily basis. We found that so very different compared to our lives . After the years we figured it out , this family did it right. We were the odd balls :)

“ I remember I was at church and John came down for prayer. I was a little shy because he towered over me, but his gentleness at that moment shined through. He was simply a good dude. I am grateful that I was able to meet him and his family.
