“ My husband, a mixture of John Wayne and Jack Nicholson, a very tough exterior but a very soft heart for his wife and children. There were often misunderstandings with some of his children because he never knew how to express himself correctly , but his heart and door was always open to each of them. His last words were of the love he had for his wife and children and grandchildren with true sadness for those he could not see. His Catholic religion was deep in his heart and he believed in his relationship with God in spite of not going to a church . I know God will take him into Heaven. Sleep well my husband, all your pain is gone. X
